Nev Fontaine went with Bill Crawford in Bill's car to a service station. Nev went in to get some milk. to be told they had none. He came out and jumped into the car turning as he thought to tell Bill there was no milk. He then discovered he had jumped into a taxi instead of Bill's car!. At the courts this morning Nev put his racket inside a ladies bag. I think his recognition skills are at risk.

Crellen Pitkin put on a great show during his match. During the second game a rip in his trousers appeared and proceeded to get bigger as the match progressed. Eventually there was more inside than outside showing and he had to change his trousers. Fortunately he had a spare pair.

Craig Bowden & Danny Zande

Craig and Danny had a huge audience when they played an amazing match that went to 10-8 in the fifth. During the match Danny showed us that he is also a bit of a soccer tragic using his head for the ball and kicking it from toe to toe.. Both players made some incredible shots—some from the floor. In fact Danny had to go to the "Blood Bin" at one stage whilst Craig had to get another racket. One rally went for twenty shots, with Craig eventually hitting the winning shot and taking the match as both players almost collapsed.

First Golfer: What's your handicap?
Second Golfer: Honesty

Three senior golfers were griping continually—
The Fairways are too long said one
The hills are too high said the second
The bunkers are too deep said the third
Finally an 80 year old put things in perspective.
"At least we're on the right side of the grass.

Squash History

Part 4 of 5

The first squash court in North America appeared at St. Paul's School in New Hampshire in 1884. In 1904 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the earliest national association of squash in the world was formed as the United States Squash Racquets Association, (USSRA), now known as US-Squash. In April 1907 the Tennis, Rackets & Fives Association set up a sub committee to set standards for squash. Then the sport soon formed, combining the three sports together called "Squash". It was not until 1923 that the Royal Automobile Club hosted a meeting to further discuss the rules and regulations and another five years elapsed before the Squash Rackets Association was formed to set standards for squash in Great Britain. The sport spread to America and Canada, and eventually around the globe.
